TAG with Your Class

Directions:

1. Show your artwork
2. What question(s) is guiding your investigation?
3. Provide effective feedback to help the artist improve their idea.
4. Write down on notebook paper the Artist Name and the TAG.
5. After you submit the image to artsonia cut off the paper and hand it to the artist.

Tell the artist something you like.

Ask the artist a question.

Give the artist a suggestion.

For this piece I wanted to implement the idea of experimentation by trying a new medium. This was my first time using oil pastels and I'd say it went well. My piece showcases my sister cooking for the first time and my dad admiring her excitement. My dad also conveys a melancholy feeling that ultimately gets consumed by my sister's yellow. If I were to redo this piece I would probably try black paper or even acrylic for more details.

Noelia Arias

The muddy oil pastel creates a grimy look which really expressed exactly how this work is supposed to feel. It's supposed to be dirty and rough. I learned that I love oil pastels. I would've planned this piece out more

I don't think this shows much technical skill at all. I feel like any random 3rd grader could do it. I mainly created this because I needed to, so it's not really good to submit for the project. I'd add more technique. I like my use of color

Cameron Bowen

I did believe that the materials and process came together to create the idea of losing time. The research and amount of time on sketches really did help with the final piece. And I'm happy how it came out. I learned that I should spend more time on clothes and wrinkles for next time. I'd change that hair and the colors used.

Project 2 10/25/21

I don't think my piece is successful... with this piece I flopped around with different ideas and never stuck with one I was really passionate about. And when I landed on this I just could get enthusiastic about it. If I were to change or go back at all, I might add some water color washes or like blots of wet paint to the piece itself.

My material and process work together to communicate my idea because I can see what I need to improve more and what I can use to make it more unique. My research has been used in my work because the artist I seen like Kathy Hildebrant, she created pieces of childhood like toys and books. I think my finished worked is somewhat successful. I learned how to draw better hands somewhat and other toys. I would change instead of using color pencil to paint and a better piece of paper.
